SCORE LOST LIVES WHEN ARABIC SANK; 400 SAVED FROM SEA

Two American Passengers are Still Listed Among the Missing.

EIGHT PASSENGERS UNREPORTED

White Star Line Statement Says Four of These Are Americans, but Consult Queenstown Accounts Show Two, Nowhereelse Is Captured.

Associated Press
LONDON, Aug. 20.—The best information now available indicates that a score or more Americans were lost in the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic, which began its return yesterday morning from the mouth of the Irish Sea. Thus far it has not been determined definitely whether any Americans are among the dead. Dr Edmund P. Wood of Lynwood, Calif., and Mrs. Josephine F. French, an American who had been a nurse for some years in the hospital at Cork, are missing.

The White Star Line announced this morning that all but eight of the passengers have been landed at Queenstown. Four of these are said to be Americans. According to information called to Washington by Lewis J. Thompson, American consul at Queenstown, however, the White Star Line has not yet obtained definite news from the German authorities concerning the missing.

The Arabic left Liverpool last night at 11 p.m. and reached Queenstown at 10 a.m. today. The other two, Tom J. Donohue of Philadelphia and Thomas E. Moore of New York, were reported by Mr. Thompson to have been saved.

In all about 100 of the 1,475 persons on board the Arabic have been accounted for. The fate of the other 475 is unknown. The Arabic was lost in the Atlantic and with such destruction here that others may have been saved are dubious.

The foregoing of the Arabic has stirred a consternation from end to end, although on account of the comparative safety of sea passage following down the coast of Europe, the number of survivors has been saved in the north Atlantic.

Not much larger proportion of the passengers and crew should have been saved in the short time available for the work of rescue performed by the life boats and life rafts. Apparently it was due to the courage and skill of Captain John, who remained at his post until the last before the Arabic took her final plunge down to the bottom where a certain death to perform their duty.

In Queenstown everything possible was done yesterday to assist the survivors of whom were without food or shelter. In the afternoon the citizens of Queenstown came to the assistance of the sufferers and none went without a home to sleep in.

The survivors are suffering from minor injuries but so far as known no one is in a serious condition.

PRESIDENT AWAITED

BIGGEST ON ARABIC
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The official details as to which President Wilson will decide whether the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic was an unfriendly act to the United States were still待定. Today and meanwhile he and other officials while realizing fully the gravity of the new situation between the United States and Germany were keeping their minds open.

Only two official reports were received yesterday to assist the fruits of independent investigation, namely committing the report of the White Star Line. The United States will decide its course on the reports of its own officials. Ambassador Page forwarded a White Star report that the ship was sunk without warning on Vice Consul Thompson of Queenstown made a similar report. Neither accounted for Mrs. Josephine F. French, nor Dr. Wood. The two American officials are keeping their minds open during the hours which will be required for assembling evidence they are thinking about these points.

Whether any Americans have been lost and whether the Arabic was torpedoed without warning.

Whether the Arabic by having been torpedoed in the sinking of her vessel and an international law violation of the horrors of her conduct will be avenged by her as a national outrage.

With due regard to the safety of the steamer Arabic which had just previously been torpedoed, the Arabic's commander introduced any qualifying circumstances by violating the rule of the British Admiralty forbidding to fire back to the torpedoed by attempting to rescue and her.

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The body of Leo M. Frank, who was lynched at Atlanta, Ga., was buried today in Mount Olivet cemetery, Brooklyn. The immediate burial and the removal of the immediate relatives of the dead man traveled at a high rate of speed over the six-mile route from the home of Frank's parents to the cemetery in an attempt to be in a position to photograph.

A crowd of scores of more than 100 people was in front of the church when the body was carried out at 9:45 o'clock. Two hours later the hearse had arrived at the cemetery and within 20 minutes from the time the funeral had started the last of the burial services were concluded.

Mrs. Louella Frank, the widow, appeared calm and restrained until the burial service had concluded. Then she collapsed and was carried to an automobile. The services were conducted by Public Auditor E. Evans of Brooklyn and Rabbi David Myers of Atlanta.

MARSHAL LAW, Aug. 20.—Watchmen today were guarding the big宅邸 two miles from here on which the body of Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, was found dangling from trees, according to recent sources of information.

The tree upon which he was suspended is a concrete affair. It is surrounded and preserved by the owner, W. J. Gray, to mark the fourth place of the alleged slayer of Zeta Phagan girl who died in the tree he being guarded at night.

At present Brown has informed them that under the amendment to the mothers pension law passed at the recent session of the legislature pensions could be allowed only to widows and to women whose husbands were permanently confined in an insane hospital.

This ruling, it was stated, follows the letter of the amendment and will be referred to the boards of trustees and it is probable that a number of customers will have to be turned away.

A conservatively estimate of the number of customers will have to be turned away is less than 100.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—The death toll in the Texas flood storm is slightly higher and the missing men are still considerably the known to fall in Galveston, including 11 men in Galveston.

Some other bodies were found about Galveston but they were supposed to be from the mainland. The dead will probably be increased by a dozen or more when the Galveston Union Hotel, which had been permitted to put up much time on it to former year.

Despite the fact that cinders from the Galveston fire had covered the streets to a depth of several inches the water will be still further increased by the rain.

A boat will be formed to lead the search for missing persons and they will be addressed to leaders in Sunday School work. The county officers of the Sunday School association will be present.

PLAN A TESTING PLANT FOR WASTE HEAT GENERATOR

Operations Interrupted by Dull Times Will be Resumed This Fall.

EARLY SHIPMENTS SUCCEED

Invention of Edmund C. Morgan, Now Owned by Uniontown Concern, Is To Be Given Thorough Trial and May Result in Saving Large Sums.

Operations brought to a standstill by rent financial complications are expected to be resumed this fall or winter in the exploitation of the Titlow Waste Heat Generating System, in which Charles D. Leavitt and George Reynolds of New Salem are interested. Plans are already made for the carrying of the project forward. Upon righting of business conditions, a testing plant will be built at the Continental No. 1 plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company. The device was some time ago tested at the Shamrock plant of the Payette Coke Company at New Salem, with satisfactory results.

The older description of an ordinary vertical boiler. It is 12 inches in diameter and a foot high with its stock grate here and fire door omitted and set in an inverted position over the tunnel in at the oven. The boiler can be operated with a rectangular or beehive oven, and with a 1910 extra apparatus, electricity can be generated and current transmitted to any point.

Figures submitted by the company show that during coal, the gaseous equivalent of approximately 22,500,000 tons of coking coal are lost in the Connellsville coke region annually through inability to extract the waste heat energy. The loss in dollars and cents is placed at from $22,700,000 to $28,126,405. Different processes are now in use in West Virginia. A one place 3,000 horsepower boiler plant is in operation, and it is estimated that it will save $1,000,000 a year. Another plant in New Mexico having a 2,400 horsepower plant produces all its power from the waste heat of 218 beehive ovens. The saving is estimated at $51,000 a year.

The generators on the Titlow machine are mounted on trucks carrying a framework adapted to hold them in an upright position over the tunnel mouth of the coke ovens. Ovens are laid at right angles to the tunnel in oil, and are supported at one end by the pillars or wall between each oven.

Edmund C. Morgan, of Chelmo, Ill., is the inventor of the apparatus. He has assigned his rights in the patent to the Titlow Waste Heat Power Company.

many of our patrons cannot understand why fur prices are so low

AYMAN and experts agree that it will be years before fur prices will be as low as they are at present. One can buy fine high grade dependable furs for the prices formerly paid for the cheaper furs.

For this reason the better grade of furs will be universally worn the coming season.

These low prices cannot last though—only good as long as the present supply that was purchased at such low prices lasts.

Almost everybody in America that manufactures their own furs like we do bought a large supply of raw skins and the surplus was soon absorbed.

Fur prices are down to an unprecedented low point because of the world's war—the countries at war were not customers this Spring, and the product of a year was suddenly thrown upon the American market, and prices dropped to the lowest in the history of the trade.

What effect these low prices have had upon our business is expressed in the fact that during the first twelve days of August we sold more furs than we have during any August fur sale in the history of our business.

Here you can select your own skins—choose your own models, and from time to time see your coat or fur set in work, as all the better grade of our furs are made right on the premises.

here's fur fashion news:

FOX in white, blue, silver, cross, red and battleship gray, is now in vogue—double furs—life-like animal scarfs—are best. So great in favor has this shape in Fox become that other fur is being made in imitation of this style—but Fox is Fox, and nothing imitated is like it.

Fox has a distinctiveness that nothing can approach—it's fur is long, soft and silky—its paws, head and tail—all combine to distinguish it as the fur of furs.

FOX being in such high favor it is only a question of a short time until the present supply, bought at war prices, will be exhausted, and, as you must have Fox to be in style, if you do not place your order now, you will undoubtedly have to pay considerable more.

You can make your selection now and your furs will be held in our cold storage vaults until you want them, and arrangements can be made so that you will not receive your bill until November 1st.

ferred to this office at once.

THURSDAY EVENG. AUG. 19, 1915.

THE NON-PARTISAN BALLOT.

The non-partisan ballot will be much in evidence at the 1915 primary and general election. Connellsville and Uniontown will nominate and elect their own candidates for all offices, the Allegheny and Fayette county will for the first time elect a Judge in Blue nummer. The voters of Fayette county will have had a great deal in the past in the non-partisan judges, but our non-partisan bench has always been elected on a partisan ballot. This year it is proposed to choose a non-partisan judge on a non-partisan ballot. His name is Repert.

The election of municipal officers on a non-partisan ballot has been some new recognitions in local politics which are puzzling the ward politicians. One marked effect has been the backwoodsiness of candidates to announce themselves, or to circulate their petitions for candidacy. Both Connellsville and Uniontown have submitted Republican majorities and the Lehighans have it in their power to elect city officers in each place.

In Uniontown the Democratic and Lehighans oppose each other in starting new organizations. The careful manipulation which would do credit to the best machine work, the promoters of this additional enterprise have copied a number of ticked smattering of which are punctuated with incisive Repert.
This newest of the citizens will be used to support on the ground that it is non-partisan, when as a matter of fact it is not.

The promoters of the movement overlook the fact that all names go on the same ticket without individual distinction, and the intelligent voter will be left to pick his own favorites.

Under this never in doubt system the voter himself is the ultimate judge of candidates just as he is of others. The Committee of 100 has no more right to dictate the nomination to the Uniontown voters than a Committee of Eight and this will probably be made plain at the polls.

In Connellsville the candidates are still under cover, though the time for final positions to drawing close to the election.

Connellsville has had an excellent administration. It is hoped that the same high standard of efficiency and honesty will prevail in selecting the successors to those who will retire.

It is not necessary to be enrolled to vote for the judicial candidate, but in cities only those who are registered to vote. Concerning the manner of voting, the Washington Observer says:

"Every qualified voter, who is registered to participate in the election of judges, will appear on the ballot as a non-partisan. He has, and each registered voter also enters the polls will be given such a ballot by the election board. If he desires to participate in the primaries of any of the political parties he must ask for a ballot of that party with which he is enroled. He can get no other. The judges elected can only recognize the primaries of the political parties in the state. But, in order to be entitled to participate in the selection of the candidates of his party he will be given a non-partisan ballot to cast his vote for judge. By the Act of Assembly that judicial contests have been removed entirely from party politics. The same situation holds true in the election of judges of the appellate courts of the state, or the federal. An individual may vote for more than three candidates under the Non-Partisan Act if one candidate receives 51% or more of the vote cast in the primary no other names will appear on the ballot at the fall election, so that a nomination to 51% of the voters insures an election.

There will be some 500 elections at the September primaries.

SWIMMING EDUCATION.

The common schools of Connellsville are progressing. They are becoming more numerous. The addition of last winter provided a large sum of money for several new schools.

The Connellsville schools teach much reading and it mostly science, and the students are required to provide their own equipment for the high school less for walking distance, to attend to school clubs, on. Athletics are a large part of the modern school plan.

In the sweep of this progressive common school movement, especially they're aiming to athletes and mental training. It is rather surprising that swimming lessons have not been included.

Swimming is not only a great exercise, but a mental training, but a most useful one. It is, in fact, the only way to keep up the health of the body. The value of swimming is well known.

The value of knowing how to swim was stressed. Illustrated this summer when two active, athletic-bodied men drowned in a coke plant reservoir, while a lot of tender years swam like fish. When the first text upset in the water, first demands that every child should be taught how to swim.
This part of its education is generally left for the child to acquire as best it can. The boy learns to swim if he has enough water handy to practice in, but the girl never has a chance, and when she's grown to woman often has a heavy gravity gravely consequence of her lack of aquatic education.

Towns that are deficient in natural advantages for swimming should provide swimming pools and teach their children how to swim. Such instruction falls naturally and properly to the school system.

PRICK GARDENS.

The gardens at the Prick coke plants have been carefully viewed and appreciated. Common knowledge is that the value of their 1915 crops is $46,000, an average of over 427 ton carbon, out of 7,210 lots at the coke villages of the Prick company but 270, or less than 1% were uninvited, and the character of the soil was a sufficient excuse for this in most cases.

Not long since it was popularly supposed that nothing green would grow around a coke plant. It was recently argued that the smoke from the ovens killed all vegetation. It seems, however, that the ground at the coke plants, like all other grounds, will grow anything when properly planted, cultivated, watered and cared for.

Now only have the gardens been practicable from the coke plants as they have transformed the aspect of the coke villages. The bare grounds and bleak surroundings of the average coke village have been replaced by yards and gardens whose bloom and growth are grateful to the senses. The coke region home has been made attractive as well as productive. Life is good living and this means wealth living.

It requires a little extra labor, to be sure. The man with the hoe must be on the job constantly. But upon the whole the attention given the garden is trifling compared with the value of its returns.

It is no wonder the Prick garden movement has attained such a hu-ky growth.

"He goes to the new-mown" says the great book, but he must get his reward in heaven, for he frequently gets swatted or jerked in this ill-natured and ungrateful world.

Raising Wheat

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Shaws

Raising wheat is not as spectacular or glorious as raising the varieties of Topics which prevail in Europe just now, but it is equally important.

If the United States were to return from raising wheat for a year or two in these peculiar times, most of Europe would be settled with severe famine and might even have to postpone hostilities.

Thus raising wheat in this country is not only a losing but a costly venture, not only of money but time.

It is a difficult and difficult endeavor for any man to grasp the business end of a farm, to grab the business end of a plow and break it in, in an authoritative type of voice.

Hot Weather Conduces to Chronic Constipation and Diarrhea.

A disposition to continue one's diet to cold foods and indulge freely in ice cream, ices, etc., results in constipation and diarrhea, so prevalent in summer, and there is no season when bowel disturbances should be more carefully avoided, as much serious disease is directly traceable to these conditions.

To regulate the bowels and quickly relieve even an aggravated case of constipation, the combination of senna and castor oil with aloes oil, in 1/2 drams under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup, Purge, is highly recommended by many physicians and all those who have used it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup, Purge acts gently on stomach, liver and bowels without irritation or other discomfort and brings relief in about 24 hours. Made of the best ingredients, it is the ideal family laxative. By stimulating the bowel tract and eliminating the fecal matter and poisons that irritate and injure, it will quickly check an attack of diarrhoea and restore normal conditions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup, Purge has been the standard remedy in constipation for more than thirty years and is sold in drug stores.

A free trial sample may be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 154 Washington St., Monaca, Pa.

I nodded. Drawing slightly back behind the door, I thrust both revolvers into the belt I had retained; this was to be an affair of bare hands—swift, merciful, not slow.

She gripped the latch, lifted her eyes to mine for but an instant, then stepped out into the hall, her lips smilng, as also pausing a moment to glance backward into the room.

"Very well, colonel; I shall certainly take your message," she said gayly, "and I thank you so much."

Her fingers released the latch, leaving the door standing ajar.

"Oh, sentry," she said pleasantly, but with guarded voice, "I know it is perfectly ridiculous, but a strand of hair has become entangled in this clasp. Would you kindly see if you can free it?"

"Certainly, miss."

I heard him set down his musket against the wall, and step forward.

"On the other side," she suggested. "If you turn this way you will get the benefit of the light; it is caught in those crowded shelves, I think."

She stepped back as I gripped him, steadyng the musket to keep it from being jarred at the door. A snap, and one conclusive effort to break loose; but with the first jerk backward I had him off his feet, helped by my arm encircling his throat, holding him in a vise. I dragged him forward through the door, and flung him to the floor face downward.

"Not my err, son," I commanded steadily. "I'll not shoot unless I have to. Hand me the rope cord in that upper desk drawer, Noreen; yes, that's it. Now, Jack, put your hands behind you! Rather a surprise party, wasn't it?"

The fellow stared up at me, and grimaced.

"You sure did put it over me that time," he admitted, a touch of genuine admiration in his voice. "Who are you, may I ask?"

"The spy you fellows planned to hang in the morning," I answered, amused by his unexpected good humor. "Sorry, Jack, but I'll have to tax you."

"The pleasure is mine don't mention it," and he winked facetiously, with a nod of his head toward the heavily breathing colonel. "I bound a bit of raw over his mouth, more to give him an excuse for silence than because I had any fear he would raise an alarm. Noreen had silently opened the door, and slipped out into the corridor. With a swift glance over the three helpless men left behind, I joined her, and tightly closed the door. The light of the distant lamp revealed her face, but her eyes were serious.

"Please leave the musket leaning against the wall," I whispered, noting she still grasped the weapon. "It will only arouse suspicion. There are two guards at the front entrance."

"Yes," she answered swiftly, "and you had better give the word. If they stop you and ask any questions, give them any name you please—only you came with dispatches from General Ramsey two hours ago and have been with Colonel Pickney ever since. It is less than an hour since the guard was relieved, for Captain Fox left me in order to make the rounds, and the two men will not know. You understand?"

"Perfectly. And the counterfeiter?"

"Kumala."

I hesitated, and her eyes flashed into mine.

"I will go also," she said simply, "for I can get to you through the camp. Draw the cap closer to cover over your eyes, we may meet with someone who may bring you in as a prisoner. That is better; now we will that as we go—about—about West Point. Do you remember, Lieutenant, that last case I damed? Captain Fox tell me—"

We turned the corner into the wide entrance hall, swolling slowly side by side, her face tilted upward to mine. As steadily my eyes were upon her, and I made some hasty response to her words, yet I saw the sentries at your own room. There is nothing more you can do. I will take one of those horses yonder and be off, and I know the country well enough to find my way. Once in the mountains I shall be safe. You will do as I say?"

To my surprise, she looked straight into my face, standing motionless. She seemed to catch her breath, as though it was difficult to speak.

"You mean that—that I am to go to my room?" she asked slowly.

"Certainly; that will be the safest and best thing for you to do. I can tell you how grateful I am to you; nothing I can ever do will repay the service you have rendered me. You are a wonderfully brave girl."

"Do you think so? Oh, but I am neither brave nor wonderful. I have scarcely known what I was doing; it didn't seem as if there was anything else I could do. But I know now; I have no doubt any more—unless unless you refuse to let me go."

"I refuse. I do not understand what I could refuse. All that remains is for you to go to your room. You will be perfectly safe here."

"How will I be safe here?" she asked indignantly. "Do you suppose they will spare me, merely because I am a woman? This has not been done in secret; there are too many who know my part in your escape to overlook the truth hidden. Colonel Pickney will have to make his report and shield me from blame. There is not an officer here who will stand by me in my defense, unless it be Captain Fox, and he could not help me. Is it under such conditions you desire I remain here?"

"But do you really think going with me will inevitably mean?"

"Yes, sir," yet with lingering doubt in his voice. "No doubt it is all right, but the orders are very strict tonight. If you have not the word I shall have to call the sergeant."

"Quite right, my man; but that is not necessary," and I took a step nearer and bent my head. "Captain?"

The two men shouldered their muskets, and the older one brought his hand up in salute.

"Pardon, sir," he said soberly, and stood aside. We went down the broad steps, dimly lighted by a distant fire, my hand touching her arm. The infantry camp lay between us and the road. The campfire in front yested just enough light to enable me to study out our surroundings. The band still played merrily in the courtroom above. The camp was quiet, the soldiers apparently sleeping on the ground. I could perceive only a few tents, showing white in the firelight, but the figures of sentries appeared here and there, slowly pacing their beats. And I had alone I should have crept forward and endeavored to slip by, unseen, but I was conscious of the hand which grasped my sleeve, and my eyes fell to her face.

IT'S GOOD NEWS MEN—SO HEED US

We Now Offer Men's Fancy Mixed Suits With Extra Trousers at $15.00 Special Union Made

—If ever Men's Suits with one pair of trousers were good for the money, these would be good at only $15.00 without the extra pair of trousers.

—A great manufacturer of men's suits went through the woolen market, picked out the best goods he could find, and submitted samples to us.

—These suits were made especially from the selection of the samples he showed us. They are fine all-wool, fancy chevrons, and cassimeres, in the best patterns—Tartan checks, pencil stripes, and homespuns. Every suit is lined with good wool serge. We're proud of the quality of these suits and proud that we can offer them for $15.00 for we think it reflects credit on our buying ability. Come in, Mr. Man, and let us show you the biggest good suit value $15.00 ever bought.
